Being in quarantine and doing online learning has been a big challenge for me. Online learning is not at all a very good way for me to learn and it has been very unproductive for me. The whole system has led me to fall behind on many assignments that I don't think I would have given the infrastructure and habits that I was used to at Carleton. Additionally, as an extravert, having such highly reduced social contact drives me a little crazy, and probably doesn't help my productivity issues.
