Several people have asked about the real chalkboard I bought for teaching from home. I bought this one (48"x36") on Amazon, though it's now sold out. Photo attached of how I set it up in my spare room. Key furniture was a milk crate, two tables, and two lamps positioned at my 9 o'clock and 2 o'clock. Used Apple AirPods (bought with PDA) for sound and mic. I had no problems with chalkboard glare, but I can't speak to WHITE boards. I did all class sessions live on Zoom but set them to record automatically and store in Panopto for students who were absent.

Like I said, the chalkboard is sold out on Amazon, so if you're interested in the $10 chalkboard contact paper I'm selling, let me know!

8 foot long chalkboard contact paper. Bought it when I was about to teach online from home, but I ended up just buying a real chalkboard instead. If you have a smooth wall or surface to put this on, it ought to work great. For what it's worth, many of my students last term remarked how much they liked me using a chalkboard.

Bought for $12.95, yours for $10. Still in the box.
